TRINITY CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

Palos Heights, Illinois

1971-72

We look back on the year, Lord—as students, faculty, administrators, boards, and constituents—and as a community of Christ-confessors, we recognize the joys we have shared: the excitement of learning and of academically striving to make our work pleasing to You; the fulfillment of celebrations in festival, worship and song of our new life, Christ-given and God-blessed; the peace of Your still might revealed in quiet campus mornings; and the holding love and concern of our friends.

And we remember problems we have shared: the bitterness caused by factional arguments and the distrust it created among us, the fruitlessness of pressured work and study done by grit instead of joy; and our failures in living out Your Law, either in ignorance, or in deliberate disobedience.

We thank You for Your Grace in giving us joy: we acknowledge our failings and look for Your forgiveness. We dedicate our imperfect lives and this imperfect year to You, knowing that only in You is the crooked straightened and the imperfect made whole.

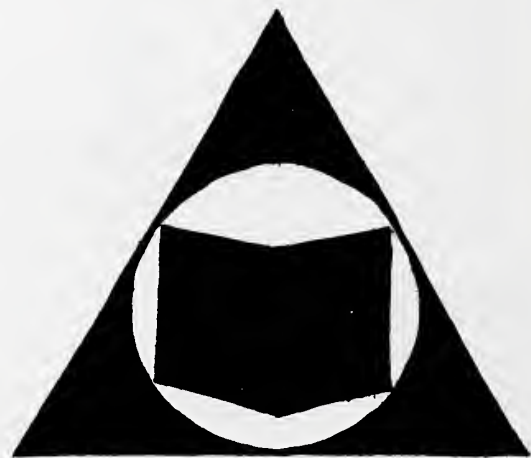

ACADEMICS . . . . .	4

COMMUNITY . . . . .	84

"In all these things we are more than conquerors through Him who loved us."

Godhead of mystery and of grace, Yet loving Footwasher and baptized Son.

We get caught up in necessary abstractions conceptions perspectives decisions.

You are the Rock—and the fresh water's gush.
You remain that Rock that followed Israel and us,
The Lord our God.

We live in a world that sees facts without focus, forces without goals.
Lest we become noisy clouds and empty cisterns, or know desert dryness with confusion of spirit, draw us together to your well of renewal, where life springs up eternally.

There is danger that we offer intake without nourishment for lives without vigor, or feel proud, or dejected in working alone.
Then you give us again your family promise, Alpha and Omega, beginning and end:
I will give to him that is athirst of the water of life freely.
He that overcometh shall inherit all things.
I will be his God, and he shall be my son.

In this year of Attica and Vietnam, Chicago, Bengaladesh, Grant, incarnate Lord—Way, Truth and Life, that we and our students, with all your servants as we struggle for truth and your ways of life may be loving footwashers and compassionate cup-bearers, may know the healing of the nations and stand together one day, the work of our hands and total being at your feet, by the river of the water of life that proceeds from the throne of God and the Lamb. Alleluiah.

Laughter runs down the corridor, and springs off plasterboard walls, so I listen—dumbly, a little longingly—before I squint at my book again. The words stumble before they reach my brain: someone downstairs is playing Judy Collins; outside, a couple chases each other through snow drifts, crippled by helpless laughter.
But I have work to do. Sometimes it seems like an unending race (and I'm so tired of running). Send a flamed tail wind to catch me up, Lord. I have this assignment to do, and a paper after that, and (hurray!) someone to meet at nine.

Can we see by 40 watts with groping hope and coffee pot:
our wager with the ancient sages in five short pages?
The shadows of illumined dials, a humming clock to pace the style and space apart the growing pile of books that blurred but still were opened:
the dots connect with Bighand motion.
Can we see beyond this time with penitence enough to rhyme?

"The campus intellect has other things to do than glory in the stretch of unknown muscle or the breathless mid-air pause before the basket 2 points, or the pock of tennis balls racketted by swift-precision temple-bodies rippling muscle over bone and sinew.
Yet still the exhaust-exhilaration of a race well run—and won—against stiff competition will be everyone's, One Day."

"God
thank You when sweaty bodies jostle and jump and play hard and thank You for the shower washing bodies clean—for the fountain which revives again
Thank You
Lord
We praise Your name."

When we explore common interests or struggle with common problems, we need Your help, Lord. In our clubs and organizations, give us personal enrichment because we want to be fuller human beings; in our committees give us wisdom because we want to do what is right. Keep us from frustration, but more importantly, keep us from apathy because it makes us impotent servants. Thank You for concerned members of our community who provide leadership and time, and for others who follow in Your name.
Thank You that we may be Your instruments, even though we often fall short of Your expectations.
Give us Your Power, through Christ Jesus.

Trying to respond rightly and joyfully to Your Word in making a yearbook is a difficult task, and we were all too new at it to know that we were doing it right. We offered our efforts to You and ask that You bless them despite our blundering.

LAYOUT: Carol Korringa, Cindi Poortenga, Joe Comanda,

Holy Spirit, Breath of God, Blow gently among us as a refreshing Breath of life Blow warm when our ardor cools and the flame of devotion begins to flicker Blow cool when our ardor overheats and we get too hot and bothered over things which really should not bother us so much Blow hard, O Holy Spirit, to drive away the chaff which gathers here Blow away the chaff of our confusion and disharmony and blow into flame a oneness of purpose Blow away our discontent cooling the sparks of friction warming the sparks of love brightening our vision Blow openly, O Spirit of God, so that it may be clearly seen that it's the Breath of God which fans the holy stirrings among us Blow strongly enough so that others will know that we are richly alive but do not blow so strongly that we get blown away.

Your mercy alone, O God, sustains us The vision of your kingdom drives us on By your Spirit lead us.

Father in Heaven,

Because Christ hung his head and died that we might have life and give life and receive life, and hold up our heads as sons of God,

We pray Lord, don't let the hard work be for nothing.
Make it fruitful despite our sin.

Shower us with joy because we have known one another in your Grace.

Hear us, for Jesus' sake, Amen.

Used by permission.
